EDUCATION RESOURCES

ONLINE GLOBAL HEALTH COURSES

UCGHI and its faculty partners offer a suite of online global health courses open to all University of California students. The courses aim to connect UC students interested in global health, teach them fundamental concepts and complex issues of global health, and inspire them to explore and contribute to this growing discipline.

Course catalog

Global Health Policy and Diplomacy - Winter 2021

Course focuses on fundamental principles and consequences of global health policy and diplomacy, including governance structure, functions, analysis, advocacy, and outcomes.

Community Analysis for Global Health - Winter 2021

Course focuses on health justice and community health where students learn how to be effective agents of global health equity.

Global Health Ethics - Winter 2020

This course covers issues of scientific integrity and satisfies the requirements for training in public health ethics.

Registration

Enrolled students may register for UCGHI undergraduate courses and earn credit from their home campus through the UC Cross-Campus Enrollment portal. If your campus hosts the course, you may enroll through your campus registrar.
